

Frozen Alaskan Pollock Fillet

Wild caught in the pristine waters of Alaska, the Alaskan Pollock is a very sought after fish that has become one of the top selling and most consumed fish in the world.

The Alaskan Pollock is part of the cod family, with a delicate and flaky texture that is similar to the cod. It is most often used in surimi and fried fillet sandwiches, yet it can also hold its own in gourmet preparations. Blending well with a variety of ingredients, the Alaskan Pollock tastes wonderful with herbs and spices, and can be breaded and pan-fried, baked or grilled.

Our Alaskan Pollock fillets are freshly frozen at catch to retain their freshness and quality.

Packing size : 4-6 oz

